Job description:
The Social Media Editor will be expected to:

- Work an average of two hours per week on social media activities for the journal.
- Advise the Editor-in-Chief, Editorial Board, BSSH and the journal's publisher, Oxford University Press (OUP), on social media strategy for the JHSE and aim to develop the social media presence of the journal.
- Post content and monitor engagement, messages and notifications across all social media channels daily.
- Work to increase follower numbers by ensuring content is interesting and by following relevant accounts.
- Promote JHSE content, advising OUP when articles should be made temporarily freely available to ensure maximum impact.
- Promote FESSH and BSSH content where possible.
- Attend the JHSE Editorial Board meeting (at the annual FESSH Congress) where possible.
- Re-post content, where appropriate, to increase engagement.
- Work with OUP and the BSSH to promote the JHSE social media programme.
- Live post from conferences where possible.
